PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

This show will get your students excited about health! Kevin combines his love of music with his extensive wellness background for this unique and engaging program. With the steady rise of childhood obesity, it's no secret there is a wellness crisis among young people in our country, including Western New York. Kevin teaches and inspires students by combining practical information on health and wellness with proactive steps that are easy to understand and follow. Students learn to apply and establish these life-long habits to take charge of their own personal good health in an energetic and enjoyable way. Kevin excites audiences with fun, familiar, and upbeat songs and actively engages the students for an enjoyable and memorable learning experience.
